Educational Symposium & Annual Governance & House of Delegates Meeting

2012

June 28 - July 1

- Report submitted by:
- Debby Moore, WV Delegate
- Jamie Browning, WV Delegate
- Ginny Lester, Alternate WV Delegate

The Bellagio

- The mission of the American Society of Radiologic Technologists is to advance the medical imaging and radiation therapy profession and to enhance the quality of patient care.
- The ASRT is governed by an elected Board of Directors that is responsible for ensuring that ASRT's operations align with its strategic plan. The Board also approves budgets, sets strategic direction and hires the chief executive officer. Seven ASRT members serve on the Board of Directors.
- The House of Delegates is the legislative body of the ASRT. It establishes professional standards of practice. It is composed of four delegates from each ASRT chapter, two delegates from each ASRT affiliate society and six delegates from all branches of the military.

- Attending the Annual governance & House of Delegates Meeting was a great experience. We encourage all Radiologic Technologists to attend the meeting sometime during their career. We were very proud to represent WV as delegates. Being a member of our state society, WVSRT, afforded us this opportunity. The ASRT is committed to the progress and future of our profession. During the meeting, the progress and advancement in membership, education, advocacy and awareness, community , and performance were all highlighted by Sal Martino, ASRT CEO.

- The ASRT also sponsors a Student Leadership Development Program. This enables the students to learn about the profession through networking, attending classes and taking part in discussions. This is a very selective process. The students must write an essay and meet all the academic requirements.
- Two students were chosen from West Virginia:
- Josh Ross from St. Mary's School of Medical Imaging, (who was unable to attend the meeting) and Casey Martin from Ohio Valley Medical Center.
